1. An Okrug Military Command is located in Pazardzhik in front of the old city prison, now used as a warehouse. This unit is commanded by an unidentified major and includes five officers, one of whom is a captain. Command is housed in a one-story building, approximately 15 x 10 meters in size, occupied in its entirety by officers of the military district.
2. Until 1953, an unidentified infantry regiment, commanded by a lieutenant colonel, occupied the barracks located on the road which connects the city of Pazardzhik to the railway station, at a point one kilometer from the station. In 1953 the Pazardzhik regiment was transferred to another unidentified location and replaced by another regiment, probably an infantry one. The barracks area includes 5-6 masonry buildings which are two stories high and surrounded by a wall approximately two meters high.
3. During the evening of a day in May 1954, aircraft of an unidentified nationality flew over Sofia and other Bulgarian cities dropping propaganda leaflets. The anti-aircraft guns located on the roof of the Bulgarian National Bank on 9 September Square went into action. Both the overflight and the content of the propaganda leaflets made a good impression on the Bulgarian people.
